

POLICY • ADVOCACY • STRATEGY

Eden Shiferaw is a recognized political strategist and government relations expert with a proven track record of leading complex advocacy efforts across some of the most high-stakes policy issues of the past decade. With expertise in healthcare, telecommunications, entertainment, labor, civil rights, civil society, gun violence prevention, public health, and technology, she has successfully navigated the intersection of public policy, advocacy, and coalition building at the highest levels of government.

Eden is a trusted advisor to key policymakers in Congress, maintaining strong and long-standing relationships with senior members of the Democratic leadership, including the Congressional Black Caucus, Hispanic Caucus, Asian Pacific American Caucus, and Progressive Caucus. Her ability to translate policy goals into actionable legislative victories has made her a widely respected thought leader in the advocacy space.

As a senior-level strategist, Eden has designed and executed multi-million-dollar advocacy and media campaigns for both the private sector and nonprofit organizations. She has successfully led coalitions tackling some of the most pressing policy challenges of our time, driving impactful reforms and shaping national discourse on issues critical to democracy, equity, and economic justice.

Before her current role, Eden served at Olsson Frank Weeda Terman Matz PC (OFW Law) and in the office of Congresswoman Marcia L. Fudge (D-OH), where she honed her expertise in legislative strategy and stakeholder engagement.

Eden earned her bachelor's degree from Duke University. She serves on the board of Planned Parenthood of Metropolitan Washington, DC, and Thrive DC, reinforcing her commitment to public service and advocacy.
